Brown, Nunn Will Discuss Money Limit

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

CAVE CITY, Ky. (AP) — Gubernatorial candidates of the two major parties have agreed to talk about limiting campaign spending in the November general election.

Democrat John Y. Brown Jr. told newspaper publishers and editors at the summer meeting of the Kentucky Press Association Friday that his campaign officials would get in touch with those of Republican Louie Nunn to discuss a spending limit. Nunn had broached the idea earlier in answer to a question about spending.

"We can limit spending and we can start right now," Nunn said. "He can pick any figure he wants to. Instead of running around in helicopters, we can bump along on the ground."

Brown said he flew all night from Honolulu, where he had said he would complete his honeymoon after the primary election, to attend the meeting. He arrived as Nunn was leaving and the two shook hands briefly.

"I'm sorry I wasn't here first to suggest it. I planned to," he said.

Brown said he had not planned to resume campaigning so soon after the May 29 primary. "At this point in time, I can't think of any duller subject to talk about than the governor's race," he said.

However, Nunn said a voter should know "as much as you can about the candidates, their backgrounds and their positions on the issues, and you have to know it early."

He said he would campaign from now until November and, "I'm going to use every moment of that time to talk to and listen to the people of this state."

The candidates were questioned about several issues in addition to campaign spending. Both agreed that the state's workmen's compensation law needs change.

Nunn said the specifics of his proposal on the law "will include rates and methods of payments. It will be a detailed thing which I will release later."

"I think it definitely has to be changed," Brown said. He and Nunn said that Kentucky's rates are higher than those in surrounding states, putting the state at a disadvantage in attracting and keeping industry.

Nunn attacked Brown's position in favor of professional negotiations for teachers, saying, "I oppose unionization of public schools and public employees."

Brown, however, said that under the bill he proposes, negotiations between teachers and school boards would not be binding upon the boards.

"It's not collective bargaining, but it's a healthy first step to get our teachers involved, to get their input," he said.

Nunn again chided Brown about not releasing his income tax returns. "Complete copies of my returns have been filed and they are there for public scrutiny," Nunn said.

Brown said he had not yet decided whether to change the position he took during the primary campaign when he refused to release his complete tax returns. He said a tax summary by his accountants had shown him to be "clean from top to bottom," and he presently saw no reason to release his returns.

Special Graduation Ceremony Today

For Over 700 Adults

A special graduation ceremony is scheduled today in Murray State University's Lovett Auditorium for more than 700 adults from 12 west Kentucky counties who have earned high school equivalency certificates since January 1978.

The ceremony is sponsored by the state Department of Education, the Center for Continuing Education at Murray State and participating local school districts.

"We want to recognize the educational achievements of those people who took it upon themselves to improve their educational levels," said Lawrence Moore, adult education coordinator for the university.

The persons being recognized are from Ballard, Caldwell, Calloway, Carlisle, Fulton, Graves, Hickman, Livingston, Lyon, Marshall, McCracken and Trigg counties.

Stubblefield House To Be Added To List Of Historical Sites

The Stubblefield house in New Concord is one of seven sites in west Kentucky recently approved for listing on the Survey of Historical Sites in Kentucky.

The other sites are the Ben F. Carr Jr. House, 203 Second Street, Fulton and five archaeological sites in Hopkins County.

Additions are made in one of three ways: a county representative of the commission submits a recommendation, an interested individual or group recommends it or the ongoing historic and prehistoric surveys conducted by the commission's professional staff produce new sites.

Carter, Brezhnev Spell Out Views At Summit

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — President Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev got down to business today, spelling out their often-conflicting world views at the opening of the first East-West summit in nearly five years.

The sun broke through leaden skies as the two leaders began their first round of talks at the U.S. Embassy, a baroque building dating back to the reign of Emperor Franz Joseph.

The ailing Brezhnev, 72, stumbled and was grabbed by aides as he entered his Soviet-made Zil limousine for the short drive from the Soviet Embassy.

Carter was on the sidewalk outside the embassy to welcome his guest with a handshake and a grin. Brezhnev replied with a grin of his own.

As the three days of talks got underway, the American and Soviet presidents were in agreement on at least one issue: they should have met sooner and should get together more often.

The formal talks opened with an exchange of verbal statements outlining often-conflicting positions on global, regional and bilateral issues.

Carter and Brezhnev exchanged brief pleasantries Friday in a formal call on Austria's president and shared a box at a glittering first night performance of the Austrian state opera.

They met for their first time in the splendor of the imperial Hapsburg palace before paying a ceremonial call on Austrian President Rudolf Kirchschlaeger. During their brief confrontation, Carter expressed regret that they had not met sooner. Brezhnev agreed and said their next meeting should not be so long delayed.

The two men cut short their stay at Vienna's famed opera house. The ailing Brezhnev left at the intermission. He was followed less than a half-hour later by Carter and a sleepy daughter Amy. Mrs. Carter stayed behind for the show, sharing the plush V.I.P. box with the Austrian president and his wife.

Brezhnev and Carter both seemed more intent on resting up for the summit opener than in the performance of Mozart's "The Abduction from the Seraglio," a love story set in a Turkish Palace.

The agenda for their first two-hour meeting today at the American Embassy was confined to the presentation of formal statements, known in the language of diplomats as "Tours of the Horizon."

A senior White House official, who asked that he not be named, said Carter's purpose was not only to recite for Brezhnev his positions on key topics but to convey the strength with which he holds his views.

Morning and afternoon talks at the U.S. Embassy were to be followed by a working dinner at the residence of American Ambassador Milton Wolf, the Carters' host during their four-day stay.

Summit talks shift Sunday to the Soviet Embassy, followed by the ceremonial signing Monday of the new SALT II Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, capstone of the historic meeting.

The state of Brezhnev's uncertain health looms large with the U.S. delegation here — one reason they hope to lay the groundwork for regular American-Soviet consultations, perhaps on a military as well as a political level.

Carter was understood to have found his Soviet counterpart alert at their brief encounter Friday when they went in separate motorcades to the imperial palace.

Brezhnev, puffy-faced and sometimes unsteady on his feet, twice took to elevators while Carter climbed long flights of stairs. It was a long day for the Soviet leader, starting with a flight from Moscow, two wreath-laying ceremonies, his first encounter with Carter and, finally, the opera.

While attention focused on Brezhnev's health, Carter also appeared tired and gaunt, possibly from his intense pre-summit preparations.

The American president's "ash-pale, deeply lined face" prompted one Austrian newspaper to comment that Carter the jogger did not look much healthier than Brezhnev "who all his life consumed huge quantities of greasy food, alcohol and nicotine."

"To be head of state is always an occupation of stress," the newspaper Kurier said in an editorial. "Apparently more so in the free world than in dictatorships."

Federal Energy Officials Call For Explanations

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal energy officials are summoning major U.S. refinery executives to explain why they're not producing more gasoline amid indications that those who don't give the right answers might get less crude oil to work with.

In testimony Friday to a House subcommittee, Assistant Energy Secretary Alvin L. Alm said the administration is considering an order that would "allocate crude away from firms that are not using their refineries to full capacity."

Alm said the president has this power under an existing emergency fuel-allocation law.

Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said he will "offer invitations" to the nation's seven largest refiners to explain why they aren't using growing crude-oil inventories to make more gasoline.

Oil companies lose crude oil unless they can justify why they aren't producing more gasoline and heating oil, Alm told the House Commerce subcommittee on energy and power.

Charles DiBona, president of the industry lobbying group, the American Petroleum Institute, claimed oil companies "are running through their refineries all of the crude oil that they can safely run."

But Alm said that though crude oil imports increased last week by 800,000 barrels, the amount of oil refined dropped from 14.6 million barrels to 14.4 million barrels a day.

Alm said there's no apparent reason why more gasoline can't be refined and that, while supplies will remain tight this summer, he doesn't expect long lines in many places. He also predicted soaring heating oil prices next winter — possibly going as high as 80 or 90 cents a gallon in the Northeast.

In other energy developments:

—The full House approved a Republican-sponsored resolution asking the administration to document that gasoline shortages are real and not contrived. The vote was 340-4.

—Schlesinger announced administration support for a bill to provide up to $2 billion in subsidies for coal oil and other synthetic fuels.

—The Interstate Commerce Commission sanctioned a 5.6 percent surcharge to help independent truckers cope with the rising cost of diesel fuel. The agency said it hoped the move would spur striking drivers to return to the road.

—A coalition of industry, labor and academic leaders asked for creation of a White House mobilization board to tackle the energy problem. The group asserted that existing U.S. energy policy is plagued by "confusion and chaos."

—The Internal Revenue Service issued temporary regulations exempting gasoline — a gasoline substitute that combines petroleum and alcohol — from some excise taxes.

—The Energy Department voiced continued support for the country's first coal gasification plant in North Dakota, despite a federal judge's objection to the project on grounds the utility's customers should not have to foot the bill.

ICC Attempts To Appease Truckers Not Successful

By The Associated Press

Attempts by the Interstate Commerce Commission to appease angry truckers by permitting a surcharge on their loads appears to be about as effective with most independents as a busted CB radio.

The ICC announced Friday the nation's 100,000 independent owner-operators would be allowed to collect a 5.6 percent rate surcharge to help pay higher diesel fuel prices.

But Mike Parkhurst, president of the Independent Truckers Association, which claims some 30,000 members, said most of the drivers involved in a hauling shutdown will stay off the road despite the ICC's offer.

"There's always some steer that jumps out of the herd," he said Friday night. "But the cattle drive continues."

Parkhurst said truckers held meetings around the country after the announcement and the sentiment was against calling off the protest.

Parkhurst said the ICC offer is too small and too narrow to satisfy the truckers, who want relief not only from rising fuel prices but also from the 55-mph speed limit and conflicting weight regulations.

In Sioux Falls, S.D., Bill Lee, a spokesman for striking truckers, said drivers there voted to keep their rigs off the road. He said the ICC decision was the first step toward ending the protest, but truckers also are concerned with uniform length and weight laws.

In Alabama, truckers were divided about what effect the ICC ruling would have. Arnold Wilder, president of West Alabama Independent Truckers, said, "This is the relief we've been seeking."

But L.D. Lawson of Montgomery, a spokesman for the Independent Truckers office, predicted that most Alabama independent truckers would find the surcharge unacceptable.

And in Nashville, Tenn., protest leader Leonard Barnwell vowed to maintain pressure on public officials. "You got to get attention," he said.

"It's like the farmer with a stubborn mule. He goes out with his two-by-four and hits that mule right between the eyes, you know, to get his attention ... that's what it's all about."

HEALTH Eczema since birth

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My son has had eczema since birth. We have doctor'd it most of this time and always when he was a baby. The pediatrician said he would outgrow it but he's 31 now.

He clears up sometimes and then breaks out on his body, hands and in his hair. He was given shots for years and still takes them but we really can't see very much help from them. As a baby and a child we tried to watch his foods.

What is lacking? I had a poor diet before his birth. Isn't there some way one can correct this? I insisted on good foods thereafter. We have three daughters and they have no problems. What could he take to help his system and is there a diet he could follow?

your diet during the time you were pregnant with your son. At present there is nothing you can do about such inherited characteristics any more than you can change the color of your eyes or other inherited features.

The primary problem in eczema is a dry, itchy skin caused by this inherited characteristic. The other skin manifestations — weeping, redness, crusting — are usually secondary reactions. These may be from an infection directly related to the scratching and irritation of the skin. One of the prominent features of the disorder is the excessive itching that occurs.

When a person inherits this characteristic there are numerous different factors which can precipitate an attack. This might be contact with nothing more than wool clothing. Incidentally, these people usually do better wearing clothing made of cotton fibers because they are less irritating to the skin.

When a person has infections, reddening and other problems, the first goal in treatment is to correct these complications. This may involve taking antibiotics.

Because the problem is related to drying of the skin, it's important to prevent loss of moisture from the skin. One approach to treatment is to avoid taking baths. In severely affected people, doctors often recommend total cessation of baths for long periods of time. A cleansing fluid that contains no oil or greasy material is used instead. It's important that the air in the house be adequately humidified.

READERS WHO want to know how to delay aging of the skin and such changes can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for The Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots And Cancer. Send your request to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

When a Teacher Had to Practice What She Taught

DEAR ABBY: I'm 83, in good health, drive my own car and read your faithful column in the Alliance, Ohio, Review. I'd like to share something with you that I've kept for many years. Perhaps you'd like to put this in your "My, How Times Have Changed" file.

It was published in the Cabell County (W. Va.) Board of Education's school bulletin in 1915:

- RULES OF CONDUCT FOR TEACHERS
- 1) You will not marry during the term of your contract.
  - 2) You are not to keep company with men.
  - 3) You must be home between the hours of 8 p.m. and 6 a.m. unless attending a school function.
  - 4) You may not loiter downtown in ice cream stores.
  - 5) You may not travel beyond the city limits unless you have the permission of the chairman of the board.
  - 6) You may not ride in a carriage or automobile with any man unless he is your father or brother.
  - 7) You may not smoke cigarettes.
  - 8) You may not dress in bright colors.
  - 9) You may under no circumstances dye your hair.
  - 10) You must wear at least two petticoats.
  - 11) Your dresses must not be any shorter than two inches above the ankle.
  - 12) To keep the schoolroom neat and clean, you must: sweep the floor at least once daily; scrub the floor at least once a week with hot, soapy water; clean the blackboards at least once a day, and start the fire at 7 a.m. so the room will be warm by 8 a.m. Just sign me...

AN OLD TIMER

DEAR OLD TIMER: Those "rules of conduct" sound more like a prison sentence than a teacher's contract. Fortunately, times have changed!

DEAR ABBY: My husband sometimes goes to topless bars with some of his buddies. I'm sure he wouldn't cheat on me; he just likes to look.

He comes right home, and I know he loves me, but I still don't like the idea of him going to topless bars. What is your opinion?

JEALOUS IN BALTIMORE

DEAR JEALOUS: It doesn't matter where a man works up an appetite as long as he comes home to eat.

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure you've heard a lot of men complain because their wives are cold and unresponsive. May I tell you about my marriage?

My husband and I both work. In the evening I try to draw him into a conversation by asking about his work. His answers are short and dull. I try to generate conversation by telling him about my work, but he's clearly bored. I've tried to discuss the news, politics, and even make small talk about people we know, but he cuts me short and picks up a newspaper, magazine or turns on the TV.

On Sunday he likes to stay home and watch whatever sport is on TV. After that more TV. Then he starts looking for an affectionate bed partner. Abby, I wonder how many women can get turned on by a stranger she hasn't talked to all week?

ICE-COLD CONNIE

DEAR CONNIE: Maybe when he says 'Hello' he's told you all he knows.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

The Japanese Lesson

What nation leads the world in per capita production of manufactured goods?

Of the major industrial countries, which boasts the fastest growing gross national product?

What nation possesses the most advanced technologically advanced industrial base?

The correct answer to each of these questions is not the United States, but Japan.

Japan's per capita production of manufactured goods exceeds that of the United States by 50 percent. Its rate of investment and GNP growth is more than double that of the United States.

Japan's workers, contrary to the cheap-labor stereotypes of a decade or so ago, now have more disposable income than most Americans.

And, although the aggregate wealth of the Japanese economy remains a distant second to that of the United States, the comparative growth curves leave little doubt that the gap will continue to narrow.

That the Japanese have registered such spectacular gains in just over three decades since their crushing defeat in World War II is truly remarkable. That they have done so on an over-crowded island barely the size of Montana with almost no natural resources should command the admiration of the world.

It should also, as Harvard Prof. Ezra Vogel notes in a thought-provoking article in Saturday Review, stir Americans to a closer examination of what might be learned from Japan's success.

These lessons are particularly appropriate at a time when the United States faces a growing requirement for energy and raw material imports and a concomitant need to sell more American products abroad. After all, Japan's economy is built around an even greater dependence on imported energy and foreign trade.

Japan's $20.6-billion trade surplus last year and the United States' $29-billion trade deficit for the same period suggests just how well each country has met its respective economic challenge.

Chief among the applicable lessons cited by Prof. Vogel is the need to stress cooperative rather than adversarial relations between government and the private-sector economy.

The Japanese government's willingness to use the tools of national economic policy to stimulate exports and help keep key industries competitive on world markets is hardly mirrored in Washington.

By way of contrast, whether on taxes, anti-trust policy, or regulation, government and corporations on this side of the Pacific are more often at odds than cooperating in the interests of coordinated economic strategy.

Few in Washington have paid sufficient attention to the critical shortage of capital available for investment and the modernization of this country's aging industrial plant.

Research and development lag partly because of apathy in Washington, partly because of shortsightedness in corporate board rooms, and mostly because the nation has yet to grasp the extent to which foreigners have stolen march on our traditional technological lead.

Japan's enviable record of labor-management peace contributes significantly to the competitive advantage Japanese products enjoy in world markets. American labor and management could learn much from this example, but few seem interested.

The Japanese have always been renowned for their willingness to copy the West and improve on what they borrow. They are now in a position to return the favor and Americans would be foolish indeed to ignore the lessons of Japan's dazzling successes.

Letters To The Editor

Grateful To Superintendents

Dear Editor:

I am listing below the Calloway County School superintendents who have served the people of the county in such a wonderful way as far as education is concerned. Some are still living and serving and I think the people should be grateful for having such fine people to serve as Superintendents.

1932-1938; T.C. Arnett, 1938-1942; Prentice Lassiter, 1942-1950; (Owen Billington served as Superintendent the period of time Mr. Lassiter served his country during World War Two); Burton Jeffrey, 1950-1968; William Miller, 1968-1976; Dr. Jack Rose, 1976 to the present time.

The above mention from the time of my remembrance strived to make improvements in the county education and I feel fair to them to bring back some memories of them and the time they served.

This information was furnished to me by Mr. Charlie Lassiter and I certainly thank him for it.

Respectfully submitted for your decision of value to print.

Wildie H. Ellis.

And Moses said unto God, Who am I that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt? Exodus 3:11

When we realize that we can do no good thing in ourselves it becomes very easy to look to God for total leadership in our day to day living.

Sitting At The Mayor's Desk

What little regulatory powers for Cablevision that are left to cities will be stripped away if a bill introduced by Congressman Lionel Van Deerlin (D-California), chairman of the House Communications subcommittee, passes. The Congressman's bill would prohibit regulation of cablevision by any governmental authority-federal, state or local. The bill would remove not only any right of local government to regulate rates but would also preempt cities from establishing the terms upon which local cable service would be provided.

Van Deerlin denies this interpretation, which is that of the subcommittee staff, however it seems odd that hearings for the bill were scheduled and begun without setting any time for testimony from local government and its representatives.

Another issue raised in this bill is the possible entry of American Telephone and Telegraph into the cable field. The bill, by rescinding a 1970 FCC ruling that prohibited telephone companies from offering cable services within their service areas, appears to invite telephone companies to compete with cable companies. This would seem at first glance, to be desirable. But when one considers that cable companies must lease the use of poles from the telephone company to place their cable on, one wonders if telephone companies would then refuse the lease of poles, thus acquiring a monopoly, just as they have with the telephone business. True, the telephone monopoly is regulated by the Public Service Commission, but we still have all seen the lack of productivity because there is little incentive for the company to insist that a reasonable amount of work be turned out. This has resulted in high rates for users, and the results would be the same in the cable TV business.

We will watch with interest to see if local government representatives are allowed to testify on this bill, or whether their point of view towards having the ability to regulate rates and other aspects of cable TV will be taken away by the federal government while operating under cover of darkness.

Echoes From The Past

(A Column of historical and genealogical anecdotes, stories and family notes.)

Peter Cartwright

In the early days of Kentucky, religion played an important part in the lives of the settlers. No matter how lightly they traveled, when they migrated to Kentucky, the family Bible was sure to be included. And one of the priorities for the early settlements, after basic housing needs had been filled, was for a church. Oftentimes, before a church could be built, services would be held in one home or another of the pioneers.

These were the days of the itinerant preacher; he spent most of his time on the "circuit," traveling by horseback in all kinds of weather, from one tiny settlement to another, conducting services. One of the most well remembered of these early preachers was a man by the name of Peter Cartwright. Following is an excerpt from Perrin's History of Christian County, about Brother Cartwright, who not only traveled through Christian County but most of Kentucky and Illinois.

"His father came from Virginia to Logan County in 1793, and settled near the Tennessee line. After Peter became a minister he settled near Hopkinsville, where he lived until his removal to Illinois. He is so well known and there has been so much written about him that it would almost seem superfluous to say anything of him. . . a few words, however, may not be wholly uninteresting.

"He belonged to that old school of pioneer ministers whose sermons were measured by their length, and the brimstone odor of the awful thunderbolts they let fly at the heads of the poor frightened, credulous congregations. Mr. Cartwright was a God-fearing, good man in his way, but could picture hell so vividly that the startled sinner in his imagination could see the fiery billows roll along, one after another, hear the ponderous iron doors open and creak on their rusty hinges, and the rusty bolts slide back and forth as the lost and doomed were shut into the seething lake of burning brimstone.

"Among other things written of him is the following: 'Mr. Cartwright belonged to the church militant, fought gallantly for his religious dogmas, and had the rare good fortune to conquer in all his battles. Baptists, Reformers, Unitarians, New Lights, Universalists, Mormons and Shakers, all fell under the blows of his battle-axe. Nor did it fare better with the blackguards, ruffians and rowdies that hung around his camp-meetings. They, too, sooner or later, were doomed to come to grief. He did not see the necessity of theological schools and an educated ministry, since, to use his own words, 'God, when He wants a great and learned man, can easily overtake some learned sinner, shake him awhile over hell, as He did Saul of Tarsus, knock the scales from his eyes, and without any previous theological training, send him to preach Christ and the Resurrection.' A powerful conviction and a sound conversion were held in high estimation by him, and these might be begun and finished in a few hours, where the good work was progressing with energy and power."

"Peter Cartwright finally removed to Illinois on account of his views upon the question of slavery. He there lived out a long and useful life devoted to the cause of his Master."

Bacon is an employee of the Wood Manufacturing Co., the manufacturer of Ranger boats. Bacon caught his fish on a grape Sportsman's super floater worm, on Barkley Lake. Bacon said he won the B.C.A. tournament last year on the same bait in the same location.

Todd Bradshaw, Murray, was proud of this new Fisher Marine boat, trailer, and the 9.8 Mercury outboard motor he received for having the most pounds in the Lo division of the B.C.A. tournament. Todd had a total of 22 pounds for the two day tournament. Todd is the 17 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Bradshaw of Murray. Todd had one lunger which weighed five pounds 10 ounces.

Winners of the Hi division of the B.C.A. tournament held Saturday and Sunday, June 8, 9 were left to right: Basil Bacon, Springfield, Mo., first place with 37 pounds four ounces; Jim Nolan, Bull Shoals, Ark., second place with 36 pounds 10 ounces; George Bowman, Dumas, Ark., third place with 36 pounds; not pictured were, David Hutcheson, Paducah, fourth place with 35 pounds 11 ounces; Hugh Massey, Murray, fifth place with 31 pounds eight ounces.

Ron Cobert, Mayfield, holds a six pound four ounce lunger which helped him place 12th in the B.C.A. tournament.

B.C.A. Tournament Held June 8, 9

Basil Bacon, Springfield, Mo., took top honors of the Hi division of the B.C.A. tournament held Saturday and Sunday June 8 and 9. Bacon weighed-in a total two-day catch of 37 pounds four ounces, only 12 ounces have second place. This year seemed like a repeat of last year because Bacon took first place then with the same bait and in the same location. Bacon was fishing a Sportsman's super floater grape worm on Barkley Lake. He is an employee of the Wood Manufacturing Co., the manufacturer of Ranger boats.

Both days of the tournament were extremely hot and had high winds, but most of the fishermen seemed to have liked Barkley Lake best. There were many large bass in the five to nearly eight-pound class caught during the two days.

Todd Bradshaw, Murray, ran away with the first place honors in the Lo division with a two day total of 22 pounds. The closest anyone came to him was Lloyd Warnecke with 16 pounds 13 ounces. For his two days of fishing Bradshaw took home a 14 ft. Fisher Marine boat, Holsclaw trailer, and a 9.8 horsepower Mercury outboard motor, valued at over $1,000. Bradshaw is the seventeen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Bradshaw of Murray.

Fishing Line

Jerry Maupin's

I saw several nice stringers of crappie taken on both Barkley and Kentucky lakes last weekend. They were on the deep drop-offs and hitting minnows and jigs. There were a few females that had not completed spawning but this is normal.

Sauger fishing has been super good for three weeks and it looks like we will be able to count on them for another summer. There are several ways to take sauger during these hot water months. Trolling is probably the most favorite but if the gas problem isn't settled soon we may have to discontinue this practice.

Casting and still fishing with minnows are popular because a person can catch several different species of fish using either of these methods.

A good locator is very handy in screening the ledges and holes for fish that are suspended. It will save you a lot of time and guesswork.

Conditions are more favorable now for a willow fly hatch so get your light tackle and fly rods ready.

We seem to be blessed with an abundance of blue gill and longears this year. If you have been bass fishing lately I am sure you have seen these fish pecking and even striking a lure much larger than themselves.

If you place a popping bug or tiny spinner near any brush or treetops there will be something hit it.

Sunfish have a very unique flavor and they are worth the trouble it takes to prepare them for a meal.

If you catch very many at a time you would be wise to use the automatic scaling machines in cleaning because they really come out ready for the pan.

I remember a few times when the Shelton boys would bring a washtub full of sunfish to the Irvin Cobb and use the machine there. I don't know if they still have one since Charlie came.

Catfish are still on the move in the deeper waters so if you are wanting to do some night fishing, work the rocky points and creek channels at the mouth of a cove or bay.

Black bass are in the shallows much of the time now so take time to work a place completely.

Plastic worms and many various top water lures are producing very good catches. Whenever a bass completes its spawning or as some bassers would say "comes off the nest" it will go on a feeding spree that lasts for several days.

Taking this into consideration a fellow should be able to put a limit of bass in the boat if he works at it.

It has been brought to my attention that a few people

Kentucky Afield

By John Wilson

There have been rabies outbreaks reported from at least two central Kentucky counties this spring, and in both locations rabid skunks have been found.

The skunk is responsible for many cases of rabies in the wilds, according to Joe Bruna, director of the Department of Fish and Wildlife's game management division.

"Skunks, along with foxes, represent a reservoir of rabies," Bruna says. "As populations of these species increase, the chances of rabies outbreaks also go up."

All skunks, even those obtained from a pet dealer, are potential carriers of rabies, Bruna says. These animals can carry the rabies virus for six to eight months or longer without exhibiting any symptoms of the disease.

This means that even a "deodorized" skunk bought from a pet store could develop the disease months after it is purchased. Immunization of skunks isn't always effective, Bruna adds.

Children, particularly those in rural areas, should be warned about the dangers of trying to "adopt" wild animals, Bruna says. Since an animal with rabies often does not exhibit the fear of man that is normal among wild creatures, children (and some adults) sometimes think the animal is a lost pet.

"The current crop of TV shows which depict all wild animals as cuddly and loveable doesn't help the situation any," Bruna adds.

"The chances are that any wild animal which allows a person to approach it is sick, either from rabies or one of the many other wildlife diseases which can be transmitted to man."

Any animal which appears suspicious should be reported to the authorities — either the county health department, the local conservation officer or the sheriff's office.

Rabies is generally transmitted from one animal to another or from an animal to man by the saliva from the diseased animal, usually through a bite. But the virus can enter the skin from any open wound which the saliva contacts.

Anyone bitten by a suspected rabid animal or even coming in close contact with one should see a physician immediately. If at all possible, try to capture or kill any animal which attacks a person or a pet. Health department officials can make positive determination of rabies and decide whether the individual needs to take the painful series of shots. If the animal cannot be located, the victim of a bite usually must undergo the rabies treatment as a precaution.

Reducing populations of foxes and skunks will generally decrease the number of rabies cases, Bruna says. But state agencies such as the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources do not have the manpower to carry out large scale programs of wildlife control.

"Right now the fur trapper represents the most feasible means of keeping skunk and fox numbers in check," Bruna says. "Recent increases in fur prices have made trapping profitable, but apparently we still don't have enough fox and skunk trappers in some sections of the state."

Tom Rushing, left, and Dan Roberts, both of Murray, had a big fight when they caught this 22 pound catfish on a trotline while on vacation this week.

Fishing's Four Steps:

Catching, Freezing, Cooking, Eating

Activity surrounding the stately art of angling can be divided into four categories: catching, preparing, cooking and eating.

Catching is the most difficult part of the process, and volumes have been written on the subject. The same is true of preparing and preserving fish and cooking them. But the eating part comes easy. Most everybody I know has an inborn knack for opening mouth, inserting fish, pushing with a hushpuppy and then settling into a chew-chew rhythm with rolled back eyes and a smile.

So let's forget the eating end of the chain and concentrate on the first three items. I'm going to lay out a few pointers on a good summertime method for catching fish, followed by a new, simple way of preserving them, and winding up with a special recipe for a real taste treat.

When the water gets warm and fish go deep, I troll. This is a good method for taking sauger, white bass (stripes) and even largemouths. It's simple, doesn't require special tackle or boats and can be practiced anytime in the day—morning, noon or night.

Trolling is relatively easy to master, but you must keep two cardinal rules in mind. First, out in the lakes sauger and stripes hang around shallow dropoffs adjacent to deep water. The best places to troll are on the edges of these drops. Secondly, baits must be bumped along the bottom to produce, especially for sauger. If you can't feel your lure digging along through the stumps and mud, you're doing something wrong.

To find good trolling areas, get a lack topo map and look for shallow bars and submerged ridges adjacent to deep areas. The best trolling spots in Kentucky and Barkley Lakes are on high sides of the banks along the old river channels (7-10 feet is an ideal depth). A depthfinder is important in staying right along with breaking (dropoff) point in such structure. Also, you might use floating markers spaced down the edge of the drop to help keep you on course.

Troll your baits 40-50 yards behind the boat. I use 20 lb. test with the drag loosely set so an unwelcome snag won't break my line before I can stop and go back. Good baits include deep-lipped crankbaits (Bombers, Rebel Deep R's, Wiggle Warts, spoon-plugs) in a variety of colors. Sauger seem to like plugs with red on the belly, and white is another good color.

Again, that bait must be digging in the mud! If it's not, troll slower, let out more line, or check the bait for proper course (tuning).

A strike will feel like you've hooked your bait into a bucket of sand. Pressure will be sudden and even until you start cranking the fish in. That's when you'll feel him pull.

Trolling is often as good in the middle of the day as it is early and late. Also, you might carry a spare rod loaded with a bait for casting into surfacing white bass.

After you get the fish back to the bank, clean them however you like (filleting or leaving them whole). Then try this method for preparing your catch for storage in the freezer. This method is the product of fishing partners Bob and Betty Lemke of Gilbertsville.

Cover a cookie sheet with wax paper, and spread your fish out. If you have too many fish for one layer, cover the first layer with wax paper and add on other fish and layers as long as they last.

After the fish are laid out, put them uncovered in the freezer for 4-6 hours, or long enough for them to freeze but not burn. Then take the fish out, dip them into cold water and place into a plastic bag. When dipped into the water, the fish pick up a thin protective layer of ice. The ice keeps the fish from freezer burns, and thus coated, they don't stick together in the bag. When dinner time comes, you can just untie the bag, take out however many fish or fillets you want, and then put the bag back in the freezer.

Bob Lemke prepares fish for his freezer. Lemke's method of coating his fillets with a thin layer of ice allows him to keep them loosely in a plastic bag.

We're getting closer to the reward for all this effort. Now let's get to the cooking.

Most people fry or bake their fish. There are a thousand different recipes for preparing the catch, but here's one I'd bet most people haven't heard about. It's for panfish cocktail, the poor man's imitation of shrimp cocktail. The idea's the same, but the makings are a little cheaper.

When you've caught your fish, clean them as soon as possible. Filleting is the best method for preparing panfish cocktail since it does away with the bones.

Dry the meat and keep it cold. Salt it down and put in a wire basket. Don't pack the meat thickly. Suspend the basket over boiling water and stem it until it has turned creamy white, yet still retaining a firmness. Don't immerse in water or allow the meat to steam until mushy.

After steaming, chill the fish in the refrigerator for several hours, and then serve over cracked ice.

You should also serve it with a sauce made of the following ingredients: 1 4-oz can tomato paste, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 tablespoon horseradish, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon black pepper, 1/2 teaspoon cayenne (or hot pepper sauce to taste).

Then you're ready for that eventual and pleasant fourth step—the eating. Again, this is where most folks are able to take over for themselves. But if you have trouble, just give me a call. I'll be glad to drop by and show you how it's done.

FOUR WHEELING

By Hamp Brooks Jr.

Twin Lakes Four Wheelers

Hold Banquet And Elect Officers

The Twin Lakes Four Wheelers met this past week for their annual banquet held at the Seven Seas Restaurant.

It was something of a shock to realize that this club is now beginning its sixth year of activity. New officers were installed. Alvis Leslie is the vice president. Laura Paschall, secretary. Donna Galloway, treasurer. Kenneth Galloway, reporter. Billy Adams, Louie Williams, Carlos Cook, directors. Yours truly is the new president which was another shock.

Those past five years have gone by rather rapidly, but many pleasant memories still linger on of those times, and we look forward to another happy year of continued association with the Twin Lakes Four Wheelers.

It seems like only yesterday that a few of us got together one night to discuss the formation of a four wheel drive club. Strangely enough, that was during a gas shortage, and one of the topics discussed that night pertained to that. In those days a few of the four wheel drive rigs were barely getting six miles per gallon.

Through Mississippi river, sand, Wildcat creek mudflats, Turkey Creek trail rides, Leatherwood ridge runs, Tennessee swamps, Blood river hill climbs, and a good many things else the club has come. It pioneered the four wheel drive pulls, a competitive event sweeping the nation now.

It was one of the leaders into organized offroad dragging. Campouts. Tours. Search and Rescue work. Cleanup days. Emergency assistance, especially in the snow choked winter days. Towing and aid in the land beyond the reach of wrecker service. It's been a full five years.

Well do we remember the day the tree "attacked" the great white Blazer driven by Sonny Hooks. And the time Huie and Spencer went off the hill in Old Red with the brakes gone! Meaty Gardner sitting there in the seat of his jeep, creek water flowing chest high as he pleaded for someone to pull him out. Highpockets Rogers wild scramble to the top of the roll bar when Bobby Galloway brought over the seven foot rattlesnake!

The great rally when Pete Galloway developed three flat tires and Daryl Cain turned a new CJ7 into a used one gliding through the soupy mess with the greatest of ease. Gary Crass's rock slinging climb into the sky with Ole Yeller and the Desert Dawgs. Dale Spencer's fabled clash with LeRoy in the episode of the watermelon. Tatlock's triumph at the "whole hog" barbecue.

The day the sky fell out and turned to buckets of water where one rotor button had to bring out three jeeps, and a new Datsun turned into a pile of scrap iron. The day five big tired, super powered modern jeeps mired down in the Tennessee bottomless pit, and Ronnie Galloway drove a worn out old fourbanger right thru like it was a highway. The great snow race down the middle of a hundred acre field at night with fourteen rigs side by side. Sharecroppers original display of Gumbo Mudders on the big Ram-charger the night he drug the ailing Scout out to firmer ground. The mud splattered day in Mississippi.

Most of all, the day yours truly got the hill named after him, dropping the clutch at full throttle to mount a furious assault and discovering the transmission was still in reverse. Lou's foot race with Shorty. Howard Hill's original pull with the blue fog 318 Goat that wouldn't die. Ray Sims successful attempt to put a full size truck thru a tight trail that scared bobtails. Huies duel with the dune buggy. Mark Paschall's double action traction at Wildcat creek. The day the guy rode through to map the trails and got so scared he couldn't breathe, let alone draw. The Sunday run in six below zero weather. Pittman's hill climb with the bucking Bronco. And more and more.

It was a fine five years. Four wheel drive has come of age. No longer is it unique. Indeed, today the sturdy rigs are commonly found nearly everywhere. The trails are more traveled now. The hills not quite so high. The impossible a few steps closer to reality. The skill a bit more tested. . . proven. Poorer in some ways. More settled.

The challenge lingers on. The beckoning finger of infinity that points out the path to peacefulness. To the mecca of spirit that exists in the land beyond. Time is the modifier of greatest significance.

The time of five years has tempered the Twin Lakes Four Wheelers. Of a truth the club has matured.

Looking forward, what reward awaits maturity? Where now goes the trail? What hill yet remains to be climbed?

Sons and daughters have been born. Those forms of recreation which involve the family have ties with at least some promise of endurance. Four wheelers seem to have a habit of looking ahead. The way they sometimes drive, that is perhaps a very fortunate thing.

HAPPY FOUR WHEELING.

"Hello Hollywood, this is Kentucky calling."

Recognizing the economic potential in having moviemakers their productions in Kentucky, the state established the Kentucky Film Commission in 1976 to harness a portion of the Hollywood industry.

The commission's track record includes attracting 10 motion picture productions, accounting for almost $6 million in direct revenue for the state, with an economic impact of more than $20 million.

Those who benefit range from hotel and motel operators to caterers and local residents hired as stage hands, production assistants or actors.

The film commission operates like any other division of the Department of Commerce, which deals with Kentucky industrial development. "We operate like any sales staff," said Tom Clark-Todd, executive director of the agency. "We maintain contacts, advertise and push for repeat business."

Clark-Todd said there isn't much wining and dining involved in selling Kentucky to this glamorous California-based industry. He said the motion picture industry is "one of the more business-like industries. They are a very efficiency-oriented industry and are aware of the cost of time — how many dollars per hour it costs to make a film."

Domestic filming of motion pictures, outside California, has increased in recent years. "One reason is the cost of construction," said Clark-Todd. "It's becoming as cost effective to find a location, rather than to build on a sound stage."

The staff of four at the film commission acts essentially as a liaison between the Hollywood crew and those local officials — or business people who control services the crew needs.

The commission began trying to bring "Coal Miner's Daughter," a movie about country-western singer Loretta Lynn, to Kentucky two years ago, mainly because Miss Lynn was born and raised in Butcher Hollow, Ky.

However, Miss Lynn's Johnson County birthplace is now clogged with house trailers, television antennae and power lines — an unlikely setting for a 1940's scene.

So the film commission helped mount a search "up more hollows in eastern Kentucky — than you can imagine," said Clark-Todd. Eventually cars, jeeps, airplanes and helicopters were all used to isolate a shooting location in Letcher County.

The next hurdle was skeptical opposition of local residents who feared they would be exploited by the filmmakers.

"Kentucky, and particularly eastern Kentucky, in the past has been depicted so unfairly," said Clark-Todd. The opposition cooled when it was explained the film would be a quality movie stressing a positive view of Kentuckians.

About one-fifth of the entire budget of "Coal Miner's Daughter" was spent in Kentucky. The crew, numbering 30 to 65 at different times, also filmed half the movie's schedule in Kentucky. The film is scheduled for release around Christmas.

The film commission presently is trying to interest other movie prospects in Kentucky. The most likely is "Willy and Phil," a 20th Century Fox movie to be filmed primarily in New York.

"Honky Tonk Freeway," an English production, will begin filming in Florida in October, but freeway locations in western Kentucky are under consideration. Locations from extreme western Kentucky to Bowling Green have been touted for "Outlaws," a new film about Jesse James.

How To Avoid Unexpected Appliance Repair Bills

Surprises. They're great for children's birthday parties. But in most other ways, we don't like them.

The reason is simple enough. Surprises usually end up costing us money. And most of us have plans for our money. All of it.

It's not surprising, then, that increasing numbers of American families are guarding against surprises in any way they can. One of those ways is with service contracts on major appliances.

According to General Electric, one of the nation's largest suppliers of major appliances, popularity of service contracts is rising dramatically, by some 25 percent a year. Apparently most of those who have bought them are satisfied. GE points out that a high percentage of those who buy service contracts will renew them at the end of the first year's coverage.

Generally, service contracts can be purchased at the time you buy the appliances or at anytime before the original warranty runs out. If you wait until after the warranty has lapsed, you'll probably have to pay an inspection fee.

Other than the peace of mind of knowing you'll not be hit with an unexpected repair bill, what other advantages are there to a service contract? GE cites the following:

— It protects the investment you have in the appliance. With a service contract, you'll not hesitate to call for service even if your problem's a minor one. That way, problems don't get to become major ones.

— It allows you to budget for household expenses with more confidence.

— It freezes the cost of service for the duration of the contract. No matter how much inflation forces prices up or how many times you need service, you know precisely what the service will cost for the year.

— In the case of GE service contracts, they assure that your appliances will be serviced by a technician trained by the company that made the appliance, and that you'll get genuine replacement parts, designed by the manufacturer specifically for your appliance.

How much do contracts cost? According to General Electric's Product Service Department, service contract prices are based on the average annual cost of repair and are determined product by product.

Contract costs vary from area to area also, simply because it costs more to supply service in one area than in another. Differences in such things as the prevailing wage scales will cause some geographical differences in costs, GE said.

Radio Shack Gains First Million Dollar Store

FORT WORTH, TX — The first Radio Shack store to net one-million dollars in sales for one year, since the company's acquisition in 1963 by Tandy Corporation, has been reported by Radio Shack president Lewis Kornfeld.

Kornfeld, who is also executive vice president of Tandy Corporation, added that, since the company's fiscal year ends on June 30, the actual figure for the store's one-year sales will be closer to $1.2 million.

James D. Savoie, manager of the million-dollar store in Wonderland Center, San Antonio, Texas, will receive a special $10,000 bonus for his achievement, Savoie, 29, has been a Radio Shack manager for three years, prior to which he worked part-time in sales while serving in the military.

The sale that put Savoie's store over the million-dollar mark was a $2800 TRS-80 computer purchase made on May 20. Kornfeld revealed that as many as three other Radio Shacks could make the same sales goal by the end of the current fiscal year.

"We know that $1-million in sales isn't a fantastic figure for some kinds of retail stores," Kornfeld said, "but the typical Radio Shack store, being small in size and limited to 2400 stockkeeping units, will average in the $300,000 area. But when Savoie's store, and a few others, ran better than $700,000 in fiscal 1978, we knew we could find a rabbit or two if the carrot were big enough."

"It appears that $10,000 is a big enough carrot," he concluded.

Purtzer, Nelson Ride Putters To Open Lead; Watson Is Out

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

TOLEDO, Ohio — A couple of long shots had the lead. Tom Watson was down the road and Lon Hinkle was still playing games with "the tree."

Those were the strange circumstances heading into the third round today of the 79th United States Open Golf Championship.

Tom Purtzer and Larry Nelson rode torrid putters Friday into the 36-hole lead at 139, three under par over the proud Inverness Club course.

Watson, winner of four tournaments and more than $353,000 this year, headed for home after missing his first cut in 31 starts.

"I was terrible. I had no control," said the game's No. 1 current performer after posting his highest round of 1979, a fat 77 that left him at 152, one shot over the cut.

Hinkle seemed to delight in playing down the adjoining 17th fairway, driving over a 25-foot spruce the governing U.S. Golf Association had planted to deter such a shortcut from the eighth tee.

"I think it's a joke. I was standing on the seventh green, looking up at the tree and felt, 'That tree isn't near big enough,'" he said.

He birdied the 528-yard, par-5 hole for the second straight day by cutting the corner, much to the dismay of the USGA.

"It's not in the spirit of the game," said one red-faced USGA official.

Purtzer, 27, and the 31-year-old Nelson displayed velvet soft putting touches in handling the slick, hard, small greens of Inverness.

Nelson one-putted 10 times for his 4-under-par 68. Purtzer had nine one-putters and a no-putter for 69.

And the unexpected pacesetters were not in awe of the big guns chasing them.

"No," said Nelson, introduced to the ancient game at age 22. "I'm not surprised. I've always felt I should have played better in Opens. I'm a good driver. Putting has hurt me before."

Purtzer, hyped by 13 birds in two rounds, put it more bluntly. "I'm a good enough player to be leading the Open," he said.

They were the only golfers to better par of 142 on this 6,982-yard layout that has entertained four Opens.

Hale Irwin, matching Nelson's 68 for the best round of the day, stood alone in third place at 142.

Inverness was a rude host for some of the glamour names besides Watson.

Jack Nicklaus, holder of a record 15 major professional championships, just made it with 77-151. So did Andy North, the defending champion, with 74-151.

Jack Nicklaus, holder of a record 15 major professional championships, just made it with 77-151. So did Andy North, the defending champion, with 74-151.

"I three-putted five times in the first seven holes," said Nicklaus, winless since Philadelphia last July. "That was it."

Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller, shooting 78-155, was another casualty.

Other notables still in the hunt were Gary Player 73-146, Arnold Palmer 73-149, reigning PGA titleholder John Mahaffey 73-150 and Lee Trevino 73-150.

Irwin, the 1974 Open champion, may be the man the leaders must fear most.

"I'm in excellent position and this is the tournament I look forward to every year," warned Irwin after his six-birdie show.

Bill Rogers was another shot back in fourth place with 72-143, two strokes ahead of a sixplayer logjam for fifth.

Included in the pack at 145 were a pair of former Open kings, Lou Graham and Jerry Pate. The others were Tom Weiskopf, Jim Colbert, Ed Sneed and Dave Stockton.

The 63 survivors will be chasing first prize of $50,000 in this $350,000 championship. Portions of the final two rounds today and Sunday will be televised by ABC.

Upset Bid... Ky. Teams Look For Wins

By the Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — The Kentucky boys and the Indiana girls will be roughly in the same spot tonight. Both basketball squads will be trying to end their opponents' domination in the annual high school All-Star series between the neighboring states.

The Kentucky boys lost both ends of last year's two-game showdown, giving the Indiana All-Stars a 40-21 edge in the series that began 40 years ago. In the past 10 years, the Hoosier boys have won 16 of 20 games.

For the girls, it's been a different story.

The Kentucky girls have won four in a row and five of the six games played since their series began in 1976.

Following tonight's games at Market Square Arena (6:30 p.m. EST tipoff for the girls, 8:30 p.m. for the boys), the squads will regroup for the rematch battles June 23 at Louisville's Freedom Hall.

"We have good talent," says Indiana girls' coach Billy Keller, who was Mr. Basketball and played in the All-Star series 14 years ago.

"We've tried to impress on the girls that Kentucky has always been strong and aggressive in the past and probably will be again this year," Keller said.

The Kentucky girls are coached for the third straight year by Roy Bowling of Laurel County, who hasn't lost a game to Indiana. And part of the Kentucky success, he says, is the team cooperation.

"I've tried to sell them on coming in here and doing what I ask them to do, whether it's playing a minute, a quarter or a whole game," he said.

"We're going to play them however much we feel we need — whatever it takes to get the job done. I think they all want to win the game, and I think they've all accepted that. To me, there's a lot of pride in Kentucky and Indiana basketball, and I want to keep it that way."

All four squads got in a final practice session Friday afternoon at the arena, and the Kentucky boys' coach Paul Patterson discounted his team's size advantage as a large factor in the game.

"We feel like rebounding is one of the weakest things we have," he said. "We lack quickness on the front line and we haven't gotten on the boards. Indiana has to be concerned with rebounding, too, and if we do come alive on the boards, then size will be a factor."

Indiana's biggest player is Mr. Basketball Steve Bouchie of Washington, who at 6-foot-8 is three inches shorter than Melvin Turpin of Lexington Bryan Station.

Indiana coach Bill Harrell acknowledged the size difference, but he said, "You worry about all phases of the game. We just have to play our game, like we have in practice, and let everything else take care of itself."

Tigers Lose Again; K.C. Rallies For Eight In 9th

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

AP Sports Writer

The honeymoon is over for Sparky Anderson in Detroit, the long drought ended for Tom Underwood in Toronto and the Kansas City Royals' seemingly endless ninth inning finally — and mercifully — came to an unhappy conclusion for the Brewers in Milwaukee.

Anderson, in his second game and second defeat as Detroit manager, was booed during the Tigers' 8-7 loss to the California Angels.

Underwood broke a personal 15-game losing streak — four short of the American League record — in pitching the Blue Jays to a five-hit 6-0 triumph over the Oakland A's.

And the Royals, who trailed 11-2 against Milwaukee ace Mike Caldwell after four innings, erupted for eight runs in the ninth, including Willie Wilson's second three-run homer of the game, and turned back the Brewers 14-11 behind a 21-hit assault.

Angels 8, Tigers 7

Bobby Grich hit a pair of home runs and Carney Lunsford and Dan Ford hit one each as California handed Anderson his second defeat in two games as manager of the Tigers. Ford's ninth-inning blast off Dave Tobik snapped a 7-7 tie. Anderson was booed when he came out to remove pitcher Steve Baker in the eighth inning.

Blue Jays 6, A's 0

Underwood recorded his first victory since last Aug. 8. The Blue Jays collected 12 hits and scored singles in all but the first and fourth innings. They got the only run Underwood needed in the second when Rico Carty walked, took third on John Mayberry's single and scored on Bob Bailor's sacrifice fly.

Rangers 9, Yankees 5

Al Oliver's two-run homer highlighted Texas' eighth-run fifth inning that broke a 1-1 tie. John Grubb singled home the first two runs of the inning and Oliver's homer made it 4-1 and chased Ed Figueroa. Lou Matlack held the Yankees to one run until they scored four times in the eighth, two on a homer by Lou Piniella.

Indians 13, Mariners 3

Toby Harrah and Ron Pruitt each drove in a pair of runs to spark a seven-run second inning that helped the Indians to their fourth consecutive victory and 11th in the last 15 games and put them over the 500 mark at 31-30 for the first time this season. Harrah had three hits, including a two-run double.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Elsewhere in the AL, the Texas Rangers exploded for a season-high eight runs in the fifth inning to beat the New York Yankees 9-5, the Cleveland Indians pounded out 19 hits and buried the Seattle Mariners 13-3, the Baltimore Orioles edged the Minnesota Twins 6-5 and the Chicago White Sox outlasted the Boston Red Sox 8-5.

Royals 14, Brewers 11

The Brewers built their big lead on Dick Davis' grand slam homer, a three-run blast by Sal Bando and Charlie Moore's two-run shot. But Wilson singled in the eighth-run ninth and added a three-run inside-the-park homer. Before the Brewers' third out, George Scott delivered a two-run single. Pete LaCock hit a sacrifice fly and RBI singles by Frank White and U.L. Washington tied the score, before Wilson lined a shot to the left field corner and circled the bases.

LaPlante, Young Stealing Show At AAU Track

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer
WALNUT, Calif. — The "namme" hurdlers in the National AAU Track and Field Championships are Renaldo Nehemiah and Edwin Moses, but Deby LaPlante and Candy Young stole the show on opening day.

The 26-year-old LaPlante became the first American woman ever to run the 100-meter hurdles in less than 13 seconds, clocking a 12.99 in her qualifying heat Friday as the three-day AAU championships opened at Mount San Antonio College. The wind, however, took the glimmer off that accomplishment as it was over the allowable two-meters-per-second.

But the doggedly determined LaPlante came back in the semifinals to run a 13.07, bettering her American record by three-hundredths of a second.

Young, a 17-year-old high school junior from Beaver Falls, Pa., rewrote the world junior record (19 years old and under) twice in the women's 100-meter hurdles, running a 13.20 in a qualifying heat, then shaving seven-hundredths of a second off that in the semis.

LaPlante, a freshman at San Diego State, said she was thrilled — briefly — when she heard the time in her qualifying heat.

"When they announced the time after the first heat, it sent chills through my body," she said. "Too bad it was wind-aided."

In one of Friday's four finals, Mary Shea of Cardinal Gibbons High School in Raleigh, N.C., ran an American record 32 minutes, 52.5 seconds in the women's 10,000 meters, bettering Peg Neppel's old mark of 33:15.1

set in 1977. Sue Brodock also rewrote an American women's mark with a 24:07 in the 5,000-meter walk, shattering her old standard of 24:10.

In another women's final, the Oral Roberts University Track Club, with Madeline Manning running the anchor, won the 3,200-meter relay in 8:31.4.

Marco Evoniuk of the Colorado Track Club won the only men's final scheduled for opening day, taking the 50-kilometer walk in 4 hours, 10 minutes, 33 seconds.

Most highlights during qualifying on the first day of the AAU's annual meet were provided by the women. Lorna Griffin threw the discus 190 feet, five inches, just nine inches off her American record. Shotputter Maren Seidler bettered her year-old meet record by two feet with a toss of 61-8. Brenda Morehead ran the second fastest 200 meters ever by an American woman, 22.56.

Meanwhile, world-record holders Nehemiah (13.00 in the 110-meter hurdles) and Moses (47.45 in the 400-meter hurdles) breezed through qualifying. Nehemiah won his qualifying heat in a leisurely 13.88, then came back with a 13.30 in the semifinals.

Moses, running easily, was timed in 49.70 in his 400 hurdles heat.

Neither hurdler is expected to face much of a challenge in his event. Greg Foster's absence with a sprained ankle took away Nehemiah's top challenger, and no American is close to Moses in his event.

"When I can run two seconds slower than normal and still win, it's not good," said Olympic champion Moses. "It makes one lackadaisical."

McNamara, Bench Say Seaver Is Back

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA — Cincinnati Manager John McNamara, catcher Johnny Bench and pitcher Tom Seaver all agree on one thing that could be bad news to the rest of the National League.

The three Reds claim that Seaver is back.

Seaver, who had won 219 games before the 1979 season, injured a muscle in his buttocks April 19 while blanking the Atlanta Braves. He wasn't much use to the Reds until last Saturday when he beat Montreal 7-1.

The 34-year-old Seaver retired the last 24 batters against Montreal, and increased his string to 27 through the first inning of Friday night's 6-3 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Seaver appears to be both physically and mentally sharp and ready to help the second place Reds make a move on the leading Houston Astros in the Western Division.

Despite Seaver's injury, Cincinnati has hung tight in the West race, trailing Houston by just 1½ games. No wonder McNamara appeared so satisfied after Seaver's sixth triumph over the Phillies. "He's improved every time out of the last three or four starts," McNamara said. "He's had a difficult road to hoe. He's had to pitch himself back into shape during the season. That took patience and time."

Bench said Seaver's job against the Phillies was as good as anytime since the pitcher joined the Reds on June 15, 1977 after his trade by the New York Mets.

"Tom Seaver is pitching like he can," said Bench, whose two-run homer helped the Reds build a 6-3 lead through five innings against right-hander Larry Christenson. "I can't pitch much better than that," said the pitcher who began the season with a lifetime 2.51 ERA. "I'm very satisfied."

Seaver did have one uncomfortable inning. The Phillies reached him for three runs in the second.

The first two batters in the second, Greg Luzinski and Mike Schmidt walked. Then Bake McBride tripled into the right field corner for two runs.

After an infield out, Bud Harrelson dropped a squeeze bunt and McBride trotted home for a 3-1 lead. The Reds had scored in the first on a double by Dave Concepcion and George Foster's RBI.

Seaver recovered from the inning and later contributed the game's key hit.

George Foster opened the Cincinnati fourth with a single. Driessen singled Foster to third. Bench grounded out and Driessen moved to second. Ray Knight grounded out, Foster scoring.

Phillies Manager Danny Ozark decided to intentionally walk Cesar Geronimo to get to Seaver. The strategy backfired. Seaver socked a soft slider into center field for a two-run double and the Reds led 4-3.

Just to make things sure, Bench slammed a two-run homer in the fifth, his fifth of the season to make it 6-3.

The Phillies had only two hits after the fourth. McBride hit his second triple with one out in the fourth, but didn't score.

Film Giant John Wayne Buried On Hill Overlooking Pacific Home

By NORM CLARKE

Associated Press Writer
NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Film giant John Wayne, who wanted to be remembered for his dignity, was buried at sunrise on a hill overlooking the Pacific home he loved.

There was no sea of flowers, no royal entombment at Friday's secret and simple farewell. Only 40 to 50 family members and close friends attended.

His grave will remain unmarked indefinitely, cemetery officials said. Prior to his death, Wayne requested the epitaph "Feo: Fuerte y Formal" — Spanish for "Ugly, strong and dignified."

"He wasn't the type for the mausoleum. He was too much of the earth and outdoors," said Doris Malmberg, whose 37-year-old son — also a victim of cancer — is buried near Wayne. The two men met during cancer therapy.

Wayne's three sons, four daughters and 21 grandchildren attended the ceremonies, along with his estranged wife, Pilar.

During the dawn Mass at Our Lady Queen of Angels Roman Catholic Church, music from some of his 200 movies was played, including the theme song from "The High and Mighty." Other songs included "Red River Valley" and "Green Leaves of Summer."

Conducting the Mass was the archbishop of Panama, Marcos G. McGrath, who had visited Wayne about a month before he died. Wayne converted to Catholicism, the faith of his family, the day before he died.

His grave — covered with only a few floral arrangements — lies on a grassy slope a few miles from his luxurious waterfront home in Newport Beach.

Jack Vibert, president of Pacific View Memorial Park, said the gravesite was selected because it overlooked the ocean "and the harbor he loved so much."

A few onlookers and members of the press gathered outside the church prior to the ceremonies, but were asked to respect the family's request that only the funeral party enter.

Concerned that Wayne's fans might flock to the cemetery, several security guards were posted at the entrance. There were few visitors during the day and they were allowed to enter.

Among them was Ted and Doris Malmberg, who came to see their son's grave.

"Our son Jerry met 'The Duke' while they were in the hospital for therapy," said Mrs. Malmberg. "They met again while sailboating at Acapulco. The last time they saw each other at the hospital — Jerry died in 1977 — John said, 'Isn't this a hell of a way to meet again?'"

TRIPLEHEADER

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — At 2 a.m. recently, the Craig Drouillards got a telephone call that they had a new nephew. A son was born to Drouillard's brother, Joseph.

At 5 a.m., the telephone rang again, this time announcing the birth of a daughter to Mrs. Drouillard's sister, Mrs. David Murray.

At 6 p.m., word came that Mrs. Drouillard's other sister, Mrs. Richard Malone, had just given birth to a son.

shall and Robert Strauss, President Carter's special trade representative.

Short believes the seminar will be an important opportunity for Kentucky business men and state government officials to better understand the administration's intergovernmental trade policy.

"Better understanding of the federal policy and federal programs designed to promote exports will enable Kentuckians to pursue foreign trade even more vigorously than at present, making for a stronger economy for the commonwealth," he said.

William Savage, executive director of the state Department of Commerce's international division, will also attend the seminar. He explained that the Cedar Rapids meeting is one in a series of three conferences designed to make states more fully aware of federal policies and initiatives regarding international trade.

The seminars, which are sponsored by the international trade and foreign relations committee of the National Governor's Association, will be held in New York City and Seattle, Wash., as well as in Iowa, Savage said. Representatives from 15 southern and midwestern states will attend the Cedar Rapids seminar, he added. Gov. Carroll heads the National Governor's Association.

Noting that Kentuckians are "becoming much more aggressive in their pursuit of international trade," Savage feels the commonwealth will be responsive to initiatives designed to increase the export market.

"This meeting comes at a particularly appropriate time for the development of Kentucky's international trade programs and the international marketing of products produced here," he said.

Other state officials planning to attend the seminar are: Paul Crafton, deputy commissioner of agriculture; Jack Scott, executive director of the marketing development division of the Department of Commerce; Katherine Peden, chairman of the Louisville and Jefferson County Riverport Authority; and Cary Blankenship, an international trade specialist with the Department of Commerce's international division.
